Article

Angel Reese was traded from the Chicago Sky to the Atlanta Dream. Reese is only 23, but she is already one of the best young players in the WNBA. She made the All-Star team in both of her first two seasons and played very well for Chicago.

The Sky sent Reese to Atlanta and got first-round draft picks in return. Reese said it was an “Angel’s dream” to join the Dream. Reports said she did not ask for a trade, but both sides worked together to find a new team that fit her well.

Reese scored many points and grabbed many rebounds in Chicago. She also improved her shooting in her second season. Still, her time with the Sky included suspensions and team tension. Chicago lost many games, but Atlanta had a strong 2025 season. Now Reese will try to help the Dream make a longer playoff run in 2026.
